A medical aesthetics practitioner from Norfolk has scooped a national award for her independent business.

Heather Wilkins from Downham Market has been named Ultimate Aesthetic Practitioner of the Year at the 2026 Female Boss Awards.

The practitioner, who runs Angel Aesthetics, received the top honour for her overall career success and training infrastructure.

Dr Wilkins said: "Winning Ultimate Aesthetic Practitioner of the Year feels like recognition not just for me, but for everything I've put into building Angel Aesthetics over the last nine years.

"When I heard my name called, I was genuinely overwhelmed, and I could not wait to share this news with my family, friends and clients."

The practitioner also said the award felt like a "special milestone" for herself and the business.

The award also comes at an exciting time for the business as Ms Wilkins expands the mentoring programme and home skincare range.

"There's been a lot of hard work, late nights, tears, happy and sad and plenty of learning along the way, and to have that journey recognised by the judges means a lot.

"I'm incredibly proud of how far Angel Aesthetics has come and I hope this award will help more people discover the clinic," she said.
